History of Kambalda

Our knowledge of the history of Kambalda before the arrival of Europeans is lost to us. The original people have gone from the area and their past is not known. However, story has it that Kambalda was named after an Aboriginal girl who died on Lake Lefroy and that the area was shunned by her people because of it. In reality the meaning of the name is not known, but it is not too difficult to believe when the lake is shimmering and glistening in the summer sunlight that people can die out there. That the area was shunned by Aborigines is hard to imagine when there is an abundant food supply, many seasonal creeks and a fresh water lagoon at Hogans.

We do know our early settlers wanted land and the Government wanted to know what this Colony of Western Australia was all about. Exploration and the search for good land have been responsible for some of the greatest journeys of discovery in European history. We tend to forget or ignore the severity of our climate and country and cannot conceive the suffering of Bourke and Wills, Sturt, Edward John Eyre and the Forrest brothers, Roe, CC Hunt and the Gregory brothers and very little credit is ever given to the discoveries of H M Lefroy, Gilles McPherson and all the prospectors who blazed the trails for others but never made maps or kept diaries. It's a harsh country and if your skills were not good enough you died.

Europeans came and survived and settled. C C Hunt made three journeys from York right through this area in the 1860's setting up water supplies for others to follow and use. Forrest and Lefroy were also in this area in the 1860's, Lefroy searching for land. These people travelled under the most exhausting conditions and yet two brothers named Dunn casually walked into one of Hunt's night camps, north east of Kambalda. They had come from Ravensthorpe searching for good land. It is inconceivable that others whose names will never be known were not doing the same thing.

Hunt's string of dams, tanks and wells roughly along the line of the present Perth to Coolgardie railway line made it possible for others to follow in his tracks.

A company called Hampton Land and Railway Syndicate formed with the intention of farming land around the Kambalda area shipping by rail to Esperance and out from there by sea was formed in 1880. It sent surveyors and others out along Hunt's Track to take up good grazing land.

Hunt's Track with its water supply (not totally reliable of course) and the camps of the employees of Hampton Land Syndicate made everything so much more bearable for the gold hungry prospectors who were to follow.

Even in the 1860's rumours of "Gold" were circulating. The Government employed Edward Hargraves of Bathurst fame to look for gold. He only travelled as far as Emu Hill near present day Narembeen and reported that the country would not be gold bearing.

By the late 1800's prospectors were out in force. How many and who they were is lost to us except a few names - one of the greatest of all time Gilles McPherson. He was certainly in this region in 1888 and again in 1889 and we have named a children's playground after him in Kambalda West.

The Gold was found in Enuin 1887, Southern Cross 1889, Coolgardie 1892, Kalgoorlie 1893, Menzies, Kanowna, Norseman, and Leonora. Men came from everywhere in the world. Within four years of the first discovery of gold the limits of the gold bearing country had been defined by prospectors moving across the country on foot, camel, horse, bicycle, by whatever means possible and then in December 1896, Percy Larkin prospecting around the edge of Lake Lefroy in gullies leading off Red Hill found payable gold. He took 106 ounces of gold to Coolgardie in January

History of Kambalda (continue)

1897 and the Red Hill Rush was on. The first prospectors lived in and around Red Hill but a town was surveyed and gazetted in December 1897.

The streets in Kambalda will give you the names of some of the leaseholders and Progress Association members of the first year. The town street names of course do not give a good picture of the numbers of people who were here. Before there was a town in March or April 1897 a meeting was called by banging a tin lid "a Roll Up" for the purpose of forming a Progress Association. According to James Balzano 300 people were at that meeting.

When William Wenzel died on 1 June 1897 (he had been sick for several weeks and was not a young man), over 40 people attended his funeral. Wenzel had a shop in Widgiemooltha Gully and had previously been at Widgiemooltha and Coolgardie and has been remembered in one of our parks. Sarah Jane Wilson came from Widgiemooltha with her husband, two sons and two daughters, their husbands and five grandchildren. What a woman she must have been keeping her family together and moving as she did from Coolgardie to Widgiemooltha to Kambalda. She was a nurse and looked after Wenzel till he died. She also is remembered in one of our parks.

Kambalda like so many of our early gold towns lived and died in a fairly short time. By the end of 1907 it was all over except for fossickers and addicted prospectors. Addiction or fever call it what you will, but George Cowcill suffered from it and brought in the new age - the age of Nickel.

The story of the discovery and early exploration for Nickel over the summer of 1964-65 is well documented in "Kambalda, History of a Mining Town" by J J Gresham and is well worth borrowing from your local library. The first diamond drilling was done in January 1966. The first hole KDI is marked with a stone plaque just below the Silver Lake Shaft. Access to this historic site is now only available through the security gate on Durkin Road. Progress was immediate and very rapid. Silver Lake Shaft infrastructure, concentrator, powerhouse, all the necessities mushroomed and a town grew up on the site of the first Kambalda. On the site but not in the same format as Western Mining Corporation built a town without crossroads and a sixty year time difference needed a different approach, but a pretty, well designed friendly town appeared out of nowhere. The original street names were re-used, some with the addition of the word "new" and four other "people" names were added, George Cowcill, Gordon Adams and Beresford, the last two being Surveyors. After those names were used the company established and has maintained a policy of naming streets after local Australian flora.

And of course it didn't stop there, exploration went non-stop and it was soon found that Kambalda was sited over a nickel field. More housing was necessary and a new town site was set up a few kilometres west and became Kambalda West. The same policy as regards to street design and naming stayed in place and another attractive town has grown up.

Gold is again an important part of life in Kambalda with a huge complex of mines and mill at St Ives south of Lake Lefroy.

Time and life do not remain static. Life in mining towns is not always easy, fluctuating world prices cause down turns, changes in technology, industrial troubles have all had their affects on the town but still it continues to survive and no-one can see that changing.

Kambalda History (continue)

The June Crosbie Centre

June and Ron Crosbie arrived in Kambalda in 1969 with their two young daughters, Helen and Rosalind. Ron was a plumber and worked for Harry McAuliffe. The Crosbie's lived in the caravan park for a while and then in the house in Martin Place which did not have a name at the time. Ron eventually brought Harry McAuliffe out and also brought his house at 10 Spinifex Street where they lived until they left Kambalda in 1994.

Western Mining Corporation made a house available in Ptilotus Crescent for a group of mothers anxious to have a kindergarten for their children and June became a volunteer there. Because money was so tight she also begged for whatever the kindy lacked from shops and whoever she could coerce. She also ran stalls on every possible occasion. Remember that apart from a branch at the Kambalda Supermarket set up in a house on the corner of Bluebush and Grevillea Street, all the shops were at Kambalda.

The Shire of Coolgardie built the present kindergarten now the June Crosbie Centre in 1969 the Education Department supplied a teacher and June became a paid employee and remained so for the next 22 years having to act as teacher on many occasions when the position had not been filled. Ron also put his time in as a Volunteer and looked after the grounds.

Somewhere around 1990 the committee of the kindergarten decided that June's contribution to the lives of Kambalda children should be recognised, the Education Department sanctioned the name of the centre as the 'June Crosbie Centre' and so it became in 1991

June is quite sure that third generations of their children are now attending the centre and though she is very modest about her contributions is very proud that the centre was named after her.

Kambalda Today

Currently Kambalda is experiencing a boom unlike no other. It is difficult to comprehend the many changes that have occurred within the community without first understanding how this came about. The initial upsurge in activity in Kambalda began when Western Mining Corporation (WMC) Resources sold off several nickel mines to smaller companies. Since then, due to a high demand of nickel from China, prices have been on the continuous rise, sparking the explosion of life in Kambalda's slow economy. Within the last six months Nickel prices have escalated to a 13 year high, averaging about $US15.1 a pound. This was certainly good news for Kambalda and its effect have been attracting business from all over Australia. Kambalda, which used to be a 'one company' town, is now home to over ten different mining companies, each one gaining considerably from the nickel boom.

It has not only been the mining companies which have greatly benefited from the booming nickel prices, but also the community. As new mining company's open up and new deposits of nickel are found, employment opportunities have sky-rocketed. This has made a very attractive invitation for many workers and their families. In just the last 3 years, the population has doubled to approximately 5000 people. The effects of this flood of new people are evident in all aspects of our town.

Land is at a premium, and to cope with the influx of new faces in the town, the Coolgardie Shire is trying to fast-track the release of residential blocks for development.

Increased demand also called attention to the need for another doctor. When our long term resident doctor, Kamila Mytych left, two new doctors were appointed, which even now, have busy schedules keeping up with the many people of our town.

Dying sporting and recreational groups are now alive with new members, the Footy Club being a prime example. Only through the employment that the nickel boom has offered has football players come from Victoria to give our team a bit of hope and with a bit of luck a better run than the last few seasons. There is certainly a new spirit of optimism in the town, and definitely a real spirit of enthusiasm as other sporting groups also enjoy the same lift in numbers as the Football Club.

Community groups and business are also profiting from the boom. Many new businesses have started up because of the new demand for goods right here in Kambalda. There are new clothing shops developing, more and more private businesses are opening, and Kambalda is flourishing.

Overall, Kambalda, which is used to the harsh ups and downs associated with being a mining town, is prospering, both financially and culturally and as residents, I have no doubt you are all enjoying the benefits of this wonderful boom time.

Lights on the Lake

A new light is shining on the lake
Among the shimmering haze
A new future dawns on the horizon
Prosperity sings its praise
A new century smiles on Kambalda
Where they've waited too long
And the miners are all coming back
While sentiments are strong

The candles have burnt their wicks
At the mines of Red Hill
Just a memory in a shaded cemetery
Where the past lingers still
The wooden head frame of Saint Ives
With its workings below
Have closed their doors on yesterday
To the days of long ago

Tomorrows footsteps are on the lake
A brightness that is shining
Once shined for another generation
Whose dreams were mining
So Kambalda enjoy your sunshine
Follow your dreams through
And may you be guided by your past
That is walking beside you
